According to Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication H06-152505 (cf. column 7, lines 1-8 "a voice mail box is provided in the exchange, and when there is an incoming call from a telephone... if the mobile station receiving the incoming call is registered as using the voice mail box... said incoming call is connected to the voice mail box, and when there is a request for cancellation of said voice mail box use registration from said mobile station... the content of the voicemail box is... transmitted to the mobile station") and the like, a storage type voice message service which stores callers' voice messages to a mobile telephone user without transmitting to said mobile telephone the call signal addressed to said mobile telephone when said mobile telephone is not in service is well known, and using the above well-known service as the storage type voice message service of Publication 1 (cf. column 2, line 33 "answering machine service") is no more than a design matter which could be suitably implemented by a person skilled in the art.

Therefore, the inventions as per Claims 1-10 of the present application could still be easily achieved by a person skilled in the art based on Cited Literature 1 and 2 and the aforementioned well-known art.
